This two-part workshop series is meant to help enrich the meaning, the celebration of and the preparation for baptism for the whole community. This is an opportunity to reflect on our own call to discipleship and explore what it means for parents to have the primary responsibility of forming their children in the faith.

In the first workshop, we will review the theology of baptism and explore how to bring the whole community into the celebration. We will reflect on our own baptisms and how that has shaped our lives. We will look at the symbols of baptism and walk through the rite.

In the second workshop, we will look at participants' current preparation processes and assess their effectiveness in light of these questions:

1. What are we preparing parents for?
2. What do you want your parish Baptism Preparation to accomplish?
3. What do you want your parents to know?
4. What do you want your parents to feel?
5. What do you want your parents to believe?
6. What do you want your parents to do?

New preparation and on-going resources will be shared.
